

The first Arbor Day happened because J. Sterling Morton and his wife moved to the Great Plains of Nebraska. They built a house on 160 acres of land, but there were very few trees. The local people believed the land was not good for planting. Sterling and his wife wanted trees and green plants.

3

©1stGrade4u.com

